Parador de Arcos de la Frontera

★★★

The Parador:
This charming Parador, once a palace known as Casa del Corregidor, is perched spectacularly along with the rest of the old town of Arcos de la Frontera on top of a great sandstone cliff, overlooking the fertile valley of the River Guadalete, traditionally famous for its horses. Captured from the Moors in the 13th century, Arcos de la Frontera (literally 'Arches of the Frontier') marked the boundary between Christian and Muslim Spain for some centuries.

Primary Facilities:
- Lift
- Parking (chargeable)

Key Activities:
- Visits to the Arcos Lake
